WHAT ARE IASB BOARD MEMBERS RESPONSIBILITIES?

- SPECIFIC POINTS:
- Approving IASB's philosophy and mission.
 Selecting, monitoring, evaluating, compensating and, if necessary, replacing management and ensuring management succession.
 - Reviewing and approving management's strategic and business plans, including developing a depth of knowledge of IASB, understanding and questioning the assumptions upon which the plans are based, and reaching an independent judgment on the probability that the plans can be realized.
 - Reviewing and approving IASB's financial objectives, plans, and
 - Reviewing and approving material transactions not in the ordinary course of business.
 - Monitoring organizational performance, including overseeing operating results on a regular basis to evaluate whether the organization's activities are being properly managed. Ensuring ethical behavior and compliance with laws and regulations, auditing and accounting principles, and IASB's governing documents.

Ahlers & Cooney, P.C. @2010

WHAT ARE IASB BOARD MEMBERS RESPONSIBILITIES?

- WHAT ARE THE RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH SERVING ON BOARD?
 - Governance is different than management. It is proactive oversight.
 - Governance Environment. Put your skills, knowledge and experience into practice. Does the Board update itself on governance issues, best practices and conduct which results in litigation?
 - Board Composition. Do other board members have the skills necessary to be effective directors?
 - Board Organization and Leadership. How is the board selected?
 What Board committees exist? Does the board leadership promote and observe good governance practices?
 - Planning. Does IASB have a plan that it follows? Does it reflect the mission and values of IASB? Is there on adequate assessment of IASB's strength's weaknesses, opportunities and competition? Does it adequately balance short and long term value creation and performance?

1/12/2010

Ahlers & Cooney, P.C. @2010

WHAT ARE IASB BOARD MEMBERS RESPONSIBILITIES?

- Conflicts of interest. Is the board truly sensitive to conflicts of interest and properly cautious in dealing with them? Be extremely cautious about an environment where relationships may, in actuality or perception, compromise board objectivity.
- Accountability. Does the board effectively evaluate management and itself? Does the board appropriately hold management accountable for performance? Is evaluation and feedback embraced as a means of enhancing board and management performance?
- perrormance?

 Board Duties. Does the board understand its legal duties of good faith, care, loyalty, compliance and oversight? How is the board educated regarding these duties? Are there procedures and processes in place to assure that it is properly performing its responsibilities? Is the board regularly advised of issues that arise?
- Director Protection. Is the board sufficiently aware of the risks of service? Are the risks openly discussed? Are directors appropriately indemnified from and insured against liability?

WHAT ARE IASB BOARD MEMBERS RESPONSIBILITIES?

- WHAT HAPPENS WHEN BOARDS AND/OR ENTITIES GO BADLY?
 - Failure to understand the oversight role.
 Good managers but not good overseers.
 - Failure to understand what it means to be a fiduciary.
 - Linked to the duty of loyalty failure to place interest of organization first.
 - Overly reliant on management and passive oversight role.
 - Board ended up working for management.
 - Excessive reliance on management and outside consultants.

Blind faith in CEO/management.

Overview of a Director's Fiduciary Duty

Prepared for the Board of Directors of the Iowa Association of School Boards,

By LeGrande Smith, General Counsel to the Board

I. Introduction.

Each Director of the Iowa Association of School Boards ("IASB"), as a matter of statutory and common law, is a fiduciary to IASB and owes IASB certain fiduciary duties. A "fiduciary" (as a noun) is a person upon whom rests a duty, because of some undertaking, to act on behalf of another person or entity, and for their benefit, in all matters related to that undertaking. An individual acts in a fiduciary capacity when she, having undertaken to act on behalf of another person or entity, transacts business, or handles money (or property), on behalf of that person or entity. (Common examples of people acting in a fiduciary capacity include corporate officers and directors, public accountants, attorneys, brokers, executors, guardians, public officers, and trustees).

In the case of IASB, each Director, as a fiduciary and when acting as a Director, must subordinate his or her personal interests to the best interests of the IASB. Consequently, fiduciary duties encompass the duties of good faith, care, loyalty, honesty, special confidence, candor, and the like.

"[D]irectors and officers of a corporation have a fiduciary duty to act in all things wholly for the benefit of the corporation." Midwest Janitorial Supply Corp. v. Greenwood, 629 N.W.2d 371, 375 (Iowa 2001).

II. Statutory Standards.

Iowa's statute prescribing standards of conduct for directors of non-profit corporations (Iowa Code 504.831 ff.) mandates that each director, when discharging director duties, must act (1) in good faith, (2) in a manner the director reasonably believes to be in the corporation's best interests, and (3) with the care that a person in a like position would reasonably believe appropriate under similar circumstances.

In discharging their duties, unless they have knowledge that makes reliance unwarranted, directors are entitled to rely upon information (including financial statements and data), opinions, reports, and/or statements provided by (1) officers and employees of the corporation, (2) legal counsel, (3) public accountants, and/or (4) other persons as to (i) matters the directors believe are within the particular person's professional or expert competence, and (ii) matters as to which the particular person merits confidence.

III. The Duties of a Director.

"Iowa law is clear that a director or directors of a corporation owe the corporation complete loyalty, honesty, and good faith." Mitchellville Co-op. v. Indian Creek Corp., 469 N.W.2d 258, 263 (Ct. App. Iowa 1991). Iowa law also requires directors to fulfill the duty of care: "The duty of care requires each director to perform the duties of a director . . . with such care as an ordinarily prudent person in a like position would use under similar circumstances." Dennison v. Mediacomm, Inc., 2006 WL 1627998, *2 (Ct. App Iowa 2006).

A. Duty of Loyalty—Being a Friend to the Corporation.

In its most general form the duty of loyalty inquires whether the Director has acted in bad faith, an expression that has come to mean actions or decision-making that serve the Director's narrow, personal interests and, generally, produce a result that injures, or is in conflict with, the corporation's best interests. The basic legal principal, or injunction, to be observed here is a negative one: the Director shall not use a corporate position for individual personal advantage.

Consequently, the duty of loyalty requires the Director to act in a manner that the director reasonably believes to be in the best interests of the corporation. There are two aspects to the duty of loyalty: first, adhering to the corporation's stated purposes, and second, avoiding conflicts of interest.

1. Loyalty through Advancing IASB's Purpose.

To satisfy the duty of loyalty, each Director should believe, in good faith, that his decisions and actions as a Director advance the stated purposes of the corporation. In IASB's case, the Articles of Incorporation describe its purposes as follows:

The purposes for which this corporation is formed are to develop, strengthen, and correlate the work of the school boards of the public schools in their efforts to promote the educational interests of the state of Iowa, and to provide such services as will enhance these purposes.

2. Loyalty through Avoiding Conflicts of Interest.

A potential director "conflict of interest" does not exist in a vacuum. The Iowa Code defines director conflicts of interest only in relation to a particular transaction: "A conflict of interest transaction is a transaction with the corporation in which a director of the corporation has a direct or indirect interest." I.C. 504.833.1. (Emphasis added). Where a corporation enters a transaction which is determined to have been a "conflict of interest transaction" (because one of the corporation's directors had a personal direct or indirect interest) the transaction may be voidable by the corporation if it was not fair to the corporation at the time it was entered.

(i) Direct Conflict of Interest.

A direct conflict of interest will arise in relation to a transaction where the corporation (on whose board the director serves) is contracting directly with the director as a natural person. "A direct conflict of interest arises when the transaction is personally between the director and the corporation on whose board she serves." Cox, Hazen, & O'Neil,

CORPORATIONS 209 (1997). For example, when a director negotiates his compensation for serving on the board, or personally sells property to (or buys property from) the corporation, the transaction raises a direct conflict of interest.

(ii) Indirect Conflict of Interest.

The Iowa Code defines, although not with complete precision, the circumstances under which a director has an "indirect" interest in a transaction:

For the purposes of this section [504.833], a director of the corporation has an indirect interest in a transaction under either of the following circumstances:

- a. If another entity in which the director has a material interest or in which the director is a general partner is a party to the transaction.
- b. If another entity of which the director is a director, officer, or trustee is a party to the transaction.

I.C. 504.833.3(a)-(b)(Emphasis added).

Consequently, it is clear that if the corporation's transaction is with another legal entity, and a director holds the position of general partner, director, officer, or trustee with the other entity, the director has an indirect conflict of interest with respect to the transaction.

"Material interest" is not defined by Chapter 504 of the Iowa Code. However, the term material financial interest, used elsewhere in the Iowa Code and regulations related thereto, indicate that a 10% or greater interest would certainly qualify as a material financial interest.

(iii) Director Conflict of Interest Transactions—Conclusion.

To avoid direct conflict of interest transactions, a director should not transact personal business, i.e., sell property to, or purchase property from, the corporation. To avoid indirect conflict of interest transactions, a director should make full disclosure of his/her relationship to, or interest in, any entity that the corporation is contemplating transacting business with. Further, if the corporation pursues such transaction after the director has disclosed the interest, the director should recuse himself or herself from any of the discussions, negotiations, or board votes associated with the transaction. After the director's recusal, the Board should ensure that the transaction is fair to the corporation before approving it.

B. Duty of Good Faith—Being Honest With the Corporation.

"Good faith is an intangible and abstract quality with no technical meaning or statutory definition, and it encompasses, among other things, an honest belief, the absence of malice and the absence of design to defraud or to seek an unconscionable advantage, and an individual's personal good faith in concept of his own mind and inner spirit. . . . In common usage this term is ordinarily used to describe that state of mind denoting honesty of purpose, freedom from intention to defraud, and, generally speaking, means being faithful to one's duty or obligation." Blacks Law Dictionary 693 (6th ed. 1990). Iowa case law, arising in various circumstances, assigns the following meanings to "good faith": good faith rests on subjective honest belief; it relates to the actual, existing state of mind, and the freedom from a design to defraud; it requires honesty in fact in the conduct or transaction concerned.

[A] subjective focus is more consistent with the common, ordinary meaning of the phrase "good faith." See State v. Kidd, 562 N.W.2d 764, 765 (Iowa 1997) ("In the absence of a legislative definition of a term or a particular meaning in the law, we give words their ordinary meaning."); Security State Bank, 554 N.W.2d at 894 (giving word "arbitrary" in section 490.1331 its ordinary meaning). The following dictionary definition of "good faith" encompasses the essential elements of that term for purposes of chapter 490: "In common usage this term is ordinarily used to describe that state of mind denoting honesty of purpose, freedom from intention to defraud, and, generally speaking, means being faithful to one's duty or obligation." Black's Law Dictionary 693; accord Webster's Third New International Dictionary 978 (defining "good faith" as "a state of mind indicating honesty and lawfulness of purpose ...: belief that one's conduct is not unconscionable or that known circumstances do not require further investigation: absence of fraud, deceit, collusion, or gross negligence").

C. Duty of Care—Paying Appropriate Attention to the Corporation.

The duty of care relates to the attentiveness and competence employed in matters of corporate business. "The duty of care requires each director to perform the duties of a director ... with such care as an ordinarily prudent person in a like position would use under similar circumstances." Dennison v. Mediacomm, Inc., 2006 WL 1627998, *2 (Ct. App Iowa 2006). The proper exercise of the duty of care requires each Director to be attentive to the corporation's business, including becoming reasonably informed of its affairs and the decisions facing them (i.e., holding and attending meetings with reasonable regularity), and that they have a rational basis for their decisions. In exercising the duty of care, a director is entitled to rely (unless they believe reliance unwarranted) on the opinions, reports, representations and information (including financial statements and data) provided by officers and employees of the corporation, legal counsel and public accountants engaged by the corporation, and experts the directors believe have special professional or expert competence which merits reliance.

IV. The Benefits and Safety That Inure From the Vigilant Observance of Fiduciary Duties.

Observance of the fiduciary duties of good faith, loyalty, and care:

- 1. Provides the proper corporate and board-level environment for the ultimate success of the enterprise.
- 2. Enables IASB to accomplish its stated purposes and mission, thereby benefiting members and the public.
- 3. Provides safety from, and a limitation of, liability for actions taken as a director. By observing and fulfilling the duties of good faith, loyalty, and care, as required by the Iowa Code, directors benefit from limitations on their personal liability for actions taken (or failure to take action) as directors. The Iowa Code provides that a director of a non-profit corporation shall not be liable to the corporation or its members "for any decision to take or not to take any action, or any failure to take any action, as a director," unless the party asserting liability can establish (among other things) such things as the following:

- a. The director did not act in good faith (I.C. 504.832(1)(b)(1)(violation of the duty of good faith);
- b. The director rendered a decision that the director did not reasonably believe to be in the best interests of the corporation (I.C. 504.832(1)(b)(2)(a) (violation of the duties of good faith, loyalty);
- c. The director rendered a decision upon a matter as to which the director was not informed to an extent the director reasonably believed appropriate in the circumstances (I.C. 504.832(1)(b)(2)(b)(violation of the duty of care);
- d. Lack of objectivity due to director's familial, financial, or business relationship with, or lack of independence due to the director's domination or control by, another person having a material interest in the challenged conduct (I.C. 504.832(1)(b)(3)(violations of the duties of good faith, loyalty);
- e. Sustained failure of the director to devote attention to the ongoing oversight of the business and affairs of the corporation, etc. (I.C. 504.832(1)(b)(4)(violation of the duty of care);
- f. Receipt of a benefit to which the director was not entitled I.C. 504.832(1)(b)(5)(violation of the duties of good faith, loyalty).
